NEWS RELEASE

Date: June 26, 2014

Liquor compliance continues good results

The City of Branson recently conducted random compliance checks of establishments with City of Branson liquor licenses to determine if clerks are verifying that the purchaser is of legal age to buy alcohol. Branson Police officers worked with the assistance of minors to conduct the spot checks of businesses throughout the City.

Over the past few days, 97 businesses were checked for compliance. The results showed that 89 of 97 businesses were in compliance with the liquor code. This is a 92% compliance rate. The compliance has been consistently above 90% for the past year, after improvements were made following a 72% compliance rate in 2011.

The businesses checked fell into one of two categories; either package liquor sales, or 'sell by the drink' in a restaurant or bar. The minors that worked with the officers were able to purchase packaged liquor in 3 of the 27 stores checked, and were able to buy a drink of alcohol in 5 of the 70 drink establishments checked.

The City credits the improvements in the compliance for local businesses to consistent enforcement. Another reason for the higher rate of compliance is the training required of servers, cashiers and bartenders by the City of Branson. Each license holder is required to have their staff attend an approved "Responsible Liquor Selling" training session, which focuses on liquor sales laws and regulations and how to properly check identification. The City holds these training sessions every other month, with the next session being offered on July 17th at City Hall. A refresher class is required every two years.
